

Skills Orientation. Our LL.M. program is designed to develop essential lawyering skills, including analysis, research, writing, counseling and negotiating, and to provide an introduction to the legal system in the United States.

Exceptional Value. Our school was ranked as one of the top-twenty values for legal education in the U.S. At current pricing, the tuition and fees for the LL.M. would be around $31,800. To make our program even more attractive to students from different parts of the world, we offer generous partial scholarships from $5000 to $20,000. The average scholarship at present is approximately $12,000, with more than $140,000 in total scholarship awards.

Support for Students. Our program is small, around 20 students, to ensure personal attention. Student advising is done by the Associate Dean for International Programs. We offer extra time on exams for ESL students, a weekly tutorial to LL.M. students to help them understand their material, get ready for class, take better notes and prepare for final exams. We also offer a summer workshop and a course in Legal English.

Flexibility. LL.M. students select elective courses from the J.D. curriculum to develop their own areas of emphasis. Common areas of emphasis include Business & Entrepreneurial Law, International Law, American Law, and Family Law. Students who perform well in the LL.M. can transfer to the J.D. program without taking the LSAT. Students may elect to complete their LL.M. in two or three semesters, and we recently initiated a January start for the LL.M. program, so students can begin their LL.M. studies in either August or January.

Diversity. In the 7 years of its existence, the program has trained students from Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Belarus, Cameroon, China, Democratic Republic of Congo, Germany, Honduras, India, Iraq, Kenya, Libya, The Netherlands, Saudi Arabia, South Korea, South Africa, Tajikistan, Taiwan and Uzbekistan.
